~ DID YOU KNOW ~

ANGEL'S SHARE VS. DEVIL'S CUT

Ever hear of these two words and have no idea what they mean?

When whiskey ages inside barrels, the temperature fluctuates based on the current season. When it is hot, the barrel expands and releases evaporation which is known as the "Angel's Share". When the barrel contracts due to the cold, the whiskey can be absorbed into the barrel wood, this is known as the "Devil's Cut".

WINE of THE MONTH

Hubert Lamy En Remilly

En Remilly is a Premier Cru climate of the Saint-Aubin appellation at the southern end of the Cote de Beaune. Located on the border with Puligny-Montrachet and Chassagne-Montrachet, it is perhaps no surprise that the vineyard is planted to Chardonnay, but the different terroir of dry, pebbly soils here means that En Remilly wines are more delicate than those of their more famous neighbors, displaying floral and mineral notes.
